

CAMPING DAYS

FOUR boys and a dog marooned on a lonely island? No—Daddy has just left them there for the afternoon, and fixed it all fine for them to enjoy. A tent all spick and span, with a fire and an old black kettle filled with their supper. What fun they will have! But the wind has started to blow, and it looks like a storm was coming up. My! The tent is going down! Hold it! Hold it! We will all get wet when it rains! Oo! see the sky, how black it is, and what has happened to everything? Where is the old kettle and the fire? Water is everywhere now, but the big storm is over, and most of us are happy again, even if the camp is gone. Tommy and the dog are worried, though, and wonder how they are going to get home.
